

Have In Tractor Solution of Pole- Hauling Problem

A new Fordson Full-Crawl tractor, with donkey and everything complete arrived on Monday last for S. H. Senkpiel, for use in the bush to get out his poles and piling. He went down to Terrace last Thursday in company with Austin Goodenough, superintendent of the Hanson Lumber & Timber Co., and watched the demonstration staged by W. H. Burnett, the Terrace Ford agent.

The machine was put to some hard work on the road, on corduroy, in soft, mucky mud, and in the bush. It did everything that was asked of it and far more than the prospective purchasers anticipated. It did the work of eight horses, and with the use of the donkey, did the work of twelve horses—that is, heavy horses.

There is no doubt that the cedar men's troubles are now solved, and they will soon be on the way to build up a bank account.

With the Full-Crawl tractor in the bush hauling to the main road and Fred Griffin's truck hauling to the depot, there is already a very noticeable difference in the piles of poles at the New Hazelton depot.

George Little, of Terrace, and several other lumber and timber men of the district were present at the demonstration. As a result, several more tractors are expected in the district in the near future.

Dismantling Finished

For this season A. B. Wing, of the B. C. Equipment Co., has completed his work of dismantling the Rocher de Boule mine plant and shipping out the equipment. Most of the stuff has gone. The remainder will be taken out next winter. When the frost came out of the mountain road last week the bottom of the road went out with it, and no more hauling will be possible until the freeze-up again. On Sunday Mr. Scobie, of the Dunwell Mining Co., arrived to mark the tram line preparatory to having it dismantled and shipped to Stewart. That work will be completed this week, and most likely George Hall will get the job of taking down the cable and taking out the machinery. Many thousands of dollars worth of machinery and other equipment was salvaged, shipped to Vancouver to be gone over at the machine shops, and reshipped to various purchasers. Mr. Wing expected to get away on Thursday night for Stewart, where he has some work to do.

Usk

Skeena's Industrial Centre

Miss K. Gibson, on her way home to Penticton from Hazelton Hospital, from which she recently graduated as a registered nurse, stopped off at Usk to be the guest of Mrs. B. Shannon for several days.

G. W. Ellis, after spending four months in the Hazelton Hospital, passed through Usk on Friday morning, bound for Vancouver. There he expects to conclude arrangements for carrying on the season's work on the many mining interests he has acquired in the district.

Milton Allison arrived last week and is inhabiting the McClarty residence. He intends to prosecute development on the Usk Group of mineral claims, which is situated one mile east of town, on Bornite Mountain.

S. A. Davis spent a few days in town on business in connection with his Centre Basin properties. He returned to the Kalum Lake district, where he will oversee some development on mining property held by Seattle interests.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell and children have left for Prince Rupert.

Dunc. McIntosh was a visitor in town for a short time and then left for the Cassiar placer fields, where he expects to cajole Dame Nature to spring loose another "nugget chain". In dour mien, he dinna wag his trap wi' glowin' praise o' fair Oosk.

New Train Schedule

The new train schedule which goes into effect on Sunday will give New Hazelton a daily train service, except on Tuesdays going west and Sundays going east. The westbound train will pass through here at 7.45 a.m., and the eastbound at 7.45 p.m. Train No. 3, inaugurating the summer schedule, will leave Edmonton on Saturday, May 1st, at 9 p.m. and will take up the new timetable at midnight. It will get into Prince Rupert on new time, 3.30 p.m., Monday, May 3. In view of the fact that the second half of the Canadian National steamer timetable does not become effective until after May 10, the boats scheduled to leave Prince Rupert on the 3rd, 7th, and 10th at nine a.m. will be held until the train arrives. After the 10th a revised service provides for steamers to depart at 11 p.m. on Thursdays and Sundays, and as train No. 3 arrives in Prince Rupert at 3.30 p.m., connections will automatically be made.

Mr. Marino of Usk has taken a position in S. H. Senkpiel's store and will also look after the books.

Progress on Nine-Mile

About a dozen men are now employed between the Silver Cup and the Sunrise mines, on Nine-Mile Mountain, and good progress is being made. W. S. Harris states that there are still from two to three feet of snow in the mountains, about the same as usual, and he does not think the hills will be bare much earlier than in other years. The work on the lower part of the Nine-Mile wagon road is being well done, and as soon as the snow is gone, some more work will be done on the upper part. That will make it good going for the pack horses that will bring down the ore.

Hospital Day to Be Observed At Local Institution

The annual observance of Hospital Day, on Wednesday, May 12, will this year be made quite a feature in connection with the Hazelton Hospital. The joint committee appointed by the Hospital board of management and ladies' hospital auxiliary met the first of the week and decided upon the following program:

On Sunday, May 9, the churches of the district will have "Hospital" services. On Monday evening, May 10, Norman Cary is putting on a moving picture show in Hazelton for the benefit of the hospital. The comedy will be a Cameo, "Good News," and the feature will be, "The Pace That Thrills."

On Wednesday, May 12, the features of the afternoon will be a baseball game on the hospital field at 2.30 sharp, to be followed at 3.30 on the hospital lawn with races and games for all children between the ages of 3 and 65 years. From 3.30 to 5.30 the hospital and nurses' residence will be open for inspection, and all interested are invited to pay their special annual visit. The nurses' residence should attract a great many. Between 4.30 and 5.30 light refreshments will be served by the hospital staff, and everyone will be given a real pleasant afternoon.

In the evening in Assembly Hall there will be a concert, followed by a dance, with refreshments served after midnight.

The committees appointed for the various features are as follows: Sunday services, Rev. T. D. Proctor and Rev. J. H. Young; Ball game and races, S. J. Winsby and Dr. R. G. Large; Afternoon refreshments and reception, the Hospital Staff; Evening concert, Mrs. Dugate and Mrs. Myros; Dance, Cooper Winch and John Newick; evening refreshments, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Winsby.

OVERHEARD AROUND NEW HAZELTON

James Dyer, of Lake Cathlyn, spent a couple of days here last week. He expects to go to Vancouver before long. Mrs. Dyer is now at home at Lake Cathlyn, although she is far from being well.

The road gang repairing the main highway between town and Moricetown is now out around Beament, and other two weeks will probably see that work completed. A good job has been done thus far.

Russell Smith was here yesterday in connection with his mine at Pacific.

The railway linemen are making repairs on the line in this section.

Chas. Carpenter of Dorreen was here this week and purchased a heavy team from Senkpiel.

Last Monday evening Mrs. H. Thornton entertained at bridge. There were three tables and the prizes were won by Mrs. Goddard and Miss Denno. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Parent and Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Denno, Miss Denno, Mr. and Mrs. Harris, John Boulding, Mrs. F. A. Goddard and Miss J. Smith.

The Ladies Aid of the New Hazelton church arranged a reception and social evening for Rev. and Mrs. Young last evening. There was a good turnout and a pleasant evening spent.

To complete arrangements for the 24th of May celebration at New Hazelton there will be a general meeting of the Community League on Saturday night in the school house. A large attendance is required.

G. C. McKay of Prince Rupert district public works engineer, was accompanied by L. E. Clarke of Vancouver, on a trip of inspection of the roads and other public works in the district. They put in a couple of days here. Mr. Clarke has been appointed assistant engineer to succeed Mr. Dimmock who resumes his former duties in the public works office at Smithers.

A Delightful Drive

A drive through this country now is one of the delights of living and would be appreciated by outsiders more than by local folk if the outsiders could see. The trees are all in full leaf and wild fruit trees are in full bloom. All along the road sides and growing out of seemingly bare rocks are clusters of purple violets as large and fragrant as the hothouse varieties. Wild flowers of all kinds are blooming. For rugged rock, wild river and peaceful pastures surrounded by virgin forests, drive from New Hazelton to Kispiox and back.

Farm Specialists To Give Helpful Talks In District

Everyone interested in agricultural pursuits will welcome the announcement that a series of agricultural meetings is being arranged throughout the northern interior of the province. These meetings are for the purpose of further developing the farming industry, and particularly the dairying and poultry branches.

A meeting will be held in the Assembly Hall at Hazelton on Thursday, May 25, next. For it the speakers arranged for are Mr. Grant, of Calgary, a marketing expert; Mr. Waby, a poultry expert of British Columbia, and Mr. Rive, dairy commissioner for the province. These men are all experts in their particular spheres and are in a position to impart valuable information along new and improved lines, and will also be able to solve many individual problems. They are coming to meet the people, and everyone interested in any way in agricultural pursuits should make it a point to be present at the meetings. It is possible that a meeting will be arranged for New Hazelton also.

To Establish Fox Farm

L. D. McKenzie, of Truro, N.S., who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. G. A. Woodland, in Prince Rupert, announced there that he was planning on extending his silver fox industry to Northern British Columbia. He is president of the Magic Silver Fox Co., of Summerside, P.E.I., and that company also has branches at Chilliwack and Victoria, B.C. Fox farms in Northern B.C. are quite profitable, and a branch of this larger concern will be welcomed.

Flowers For Station Garden

If present plans are carried out successfully, there will be a large flower garden at the back of the New Hazelton depot. A good-sized piece of land has been made ready and is being fenced. There is a water supply on the grounds and everything is in fine shape for the flowers. The people of the town are invited to donate plants, flowers, bulbs, etc., for setting out, to make the railway property at the station beautiful. There is no doubt that a flower garden at a depot adds to the pleasure of the travelling public.

Geo. D. Parent has plans made for a large roothouse on his farm adjoining the station grounds and close to the station. The cellar will be of a size that will enable him to store a large quantity of farm produce, either for local consumption or for shipment when the market is most favorable.

The mining laws of this Province are more liberal and the fees lower than any other Province in the Dominion or any Colony in the British Empire. Mineral locations are granted to discoverers for nominal fees. Absolute titles are obtained by developing such properties, security of which is guaranteed by crown grants.

N.B.—Practically all British Columbia mineral properties upon which work has been done are described in some one of the Annual Reports of the Minister of Mines. Those considering mining investments should refer to such reports. They are available without charge on application to the Department of Mines, Victoria, B.C. Reports of the Geological Survey of Canada, Pacific Building, Vancouver, are recommended as valuable sources of information.

FISHING BY TORCHLIGHT

AN INDIAN LEGEND

RECOUNTED BY (MRS.) ROXY I. TOMLINSON

The original name of Hazelton, B.C., was Kit-wan-makx, which means "Fishing by Torchlight". The legend connected with this name is believed by the natives to be an historical fact. We will let the reader judge for himself.

When the Indian girl attains the age of puberty she is sent to live in a hut, which is usually some distance from the village. The time of her exile is a full year. During the first four days she must fast, neither is she allowed to drink from a receptacle. A hollow bone, taken from the wing of the wild swan, is used for a drinking-tube, and through this she may take a small sip four times a day.

The fifth day is one of great rejoicing for the exiled girl and the people of the village, for on that day the girl breaks her fast and is allowed to eat dried salmon after it has been thoroughly masticated by four relatives from her father's side of the house. A feast is spread in the village in honor of the girl; dances and weird dirges are sung to the time of the Indian drum.

During the remainder of the year the girl's mother supplies her with provisions, but she is not allowed to mingle with others of her tribe. When the time of her exile has passed she slips into her mother's house, and no thing is said of her long absence; it is taken quite as a matter of course.

Cumsha Clatz was the daughter of the head chief of the tribe which was camped at the forks of the Skeena and Bulkly rivers. It was a pretty spot, surrounded by gigantic mountains and dark forests which teemed with wild animals of all kinds. From these and the swift flowing rivers the Indians gained their livelihood.

Many, many years before the white man penetrated the wilds of Northern B.C., Cumsha Clatz lived here with her father and mother. Her days were spent in hunting with her brothers, and the long winter evenings in listening to older people as they related the tales of daring deeds and cunning acts.

Cumsha Clatz had a dog which accompanied her and her brothers on their hunting trips. She was passionately fond of him, for he was a great hunter. No animal was safe when Owsh was on its track, since he never failed to run it down. The chief's family was rarely without fresh meat.

Because Cumsha Clatz was the princess of her tribe it made no difference in regard to the custom to be carried out when she reached the age of womanhood, for she, like other girls, had to be exiled from her home for a year.

She did not take kindly to the idea, for her carefree life had not fitted her for such an ordeal. When the time came for her to be taken away to the hut, she longed very much to be able to take her dog with her. She had often, while out hunting, voiced her wish to Owsh, but he appeared not to understand.

After a couple of weeks the girl was finding the loneliness almost more than she could bear. She pictured her brothers and her beloved dog on the hunt; and, oh, how she wished that she had been born a boy and so escape that awful solitude!

While sitting one evening by the fireside, listening to the medicine men in the village with their drums and rattles and dirges, she was aroused by a scratching at the door. Hurriedly she opened it, and there before her stood her faithful old dog. He seemed just as pleased as she was and manifested his joy as only a dog can. Early in the morning he was scratching at the door to be let out again. Cumsha Clatz opened the door for him, and he was off like the wind. Soon he returned and brought two rabbits, which the girl hurried to skin and cook for their breakfast. Day after day Owsh would make his appearance and bring fresh meat; often he would stay the night. Cumsha Clatz always looked for his coming and found real joy in his companionship.

It had been snowing all day and the paths through the forest were piled high. Cumsha Clatz was alone, and was hoping that Owsh would come to keep her company for the night. He did not appear, and she was keenly disappointed, but she listened. She thought she heard someone approaching the cabin. There was a knock. The girl opened the door, expecting to greet her mother, but, to her great surprise, beheld a man! He was cold and covered with snow, and tired, too, he informed her. He wished to have a place where he might rest and get warm. He had been travelling all day and the loose snow had hindered his progress.

Cumsha Clatz was in a dilemma. She longed to talk to a human being, for she had seen none for many moons. This was a stranger; she could not remember having seen him before. No doubt he was ignorant of the fact that she was forbidden to have visitors, especially those of the male sex. However, Gahoot—such was his name—begged so hard to be taken in that she gave consent. He stayed the night, but long before dawn was up and off. Cumsha Clatz was very disappointed when she woke and found that her visitor had gone.

That night he returned again and brought with him a quarter of bear meat. The princess admired his hunting skill, and again allowed him to stay all night. He continued, like the dog, to come and go as he pleased. Sometimes he would bring fresh meat, and sometimes the dog would bring rabbits and grouse. However, she noticed that the dog and the dog and the man were never in the house at the same time. This seemed strange to the girl, for Gahoot would always throw a choice piece of meat down for the dog. Cumsha Clatz racked her brain to remember any time that the dog had been in the hut when Gahoot was there, but she could not recall their having met. This puzzled her, and while she tried to dismiss it from her mind, she felt there must be some mystery. She had already become the wife of Gahoot, and she was worried, for if the chief were to find out he would punish her severely.

One day when Gahoot was talking he gave Cumsha Clatz a side glance which so reminded her of the dog that she was startled, and she made up her mind to follow her husband the next day, see for herself what happened, and thus solve the mystery.

Gahoot was awake very early in the morning. He made his preparations for hunting, got his breakfast, and was off on his snowshoes. The girl made ready to follow. Fastening on her snowshoes, she started away. On and on she walked, keeping on Gahoot's tracks, for about four or five miles, when she was astonished to see a pair of snowshoes hanging from a tree ahead of her. When she arrived at the tree she noticed that where the snowshoe marks ceased were the tracks of a dog. Cumsha Clatz was bewildered at first, but after a little thought she realized that Gahoot must have been able to change his personality into that of a dog or a man, and that the dog she loved so much was Gahoot in the form of a beast.

She resolved that there was but one thing to do—she must tell her father. It would be hard to face his wrath, the disgrace, and the punishment. There was no other solution. Then, too, she had realized for some time that she would soon become a mother, and that an explanation would have to be made. She retraced her steps with heavy heart, but instead of going to her hut, she followed the trail that lead to the village and her father's home.

HAZELTON NOTES

Jas. Turnbull spent last weekend in town.

Mrs. James Turnbull entertained at bridge last evening.

The tennis court at the hospital has been put in shape for the season.

Seventy-two in the shade was the official temperature on Tuesday last.

A couple of the mounted police from Telkwa paid a visit here
during the week.

Next week will be played the last of the series of bridge games
by the Felix Club.

Don't forget about this being clean up week. You still have a few hours left to get busy.

Rev. T. D. Proctor left last Sunday to attend a meeting of the Anglican Synod in Vancouver.

Walton Sharpe is, again able to be on the job as forest ranger.
He was laid up for several weeks.

Miss Ralphena Wrinch and Arthur Wrinch arrived home on Sunday morning. They have been attending university at Vancouver.

The boys now hie away to the lakes and streams for a few hours' fishing. As yet the fish are not biting, but there is much sport lying in the sun and getting blistered.

At a meeting of the quarterly board of the United Church held this week John Newick was appointed a delegate to attend the conference in Vancouver opening on May 12.

Miss Vera McInnes, of North Bulkley, who has been attending the University of B.C., has returned to her home for the summer. She spent last week-end with Miss Ruth Stewart in Prince Rupert.

Rev. V. H. Sansum is making quite an improvement in the appearance of the grounds around the church and parsonage at Kis-piox. His example of growing garden produce and flowers will be a benefit to the natives.

Mrs. John Newick is expected home on Sunday morning after spending the past five or six weeks holidaying in Vancouver and Victoria. She is feeling very much better for the rest and the change. Her return was delayed a few days owing to the serious illness of Mrs. R. W. Lee of Victoria.

C. W. Dawson paid a visit to Sealy Lake on Monday and got a nice string of fishes. He has boats on several lakes in the district, but finds it necessary to padlock some of them, especially those on the nearby lakes as others using the craft sometimes forget to return them to their proper moorings. Bud is a great follower of Isaac Walton and he gets peeved when he finds his boat on the other side of the lake when he wants to fish on this side of the lake. He even prefers fishing to umpiring a ball game between the whites and Indians.

Woodcock

W. Aird, of Pacific, was here last week.

On Thursday morning of last week J. K. Frost, forest ranger, of Terrace, gave an interesting talk to the school children in connection with the "Save the Forest" Week.

Mrs. W. Brand and Mrs. Harvey visited Kitwanga friends on the 22nd.

D. McLean spent Sunday at Woodcock.

L. Doll was a Kitwanga visitor
on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Paulis, Cedarvale, called on Woodcock friends on Monday evening.

Misses Alberta and Irene Dentinger visited at Cedarvale last Saturday.

Mrs. W. C. Little rode to Cedarvale on Tuesday afternoon.

Fred Stork, M.P., made his maiden speech of the session recently, when he vocally agreed with the old age pension legislation now before the House at Ottawa.
